

Privacy and Security

The privacy of our customers has always been of utmost importance to Somerville Partners Ltd. We have a long history of protecting your privacy and our concern for your privacy is no different in the electronic age. Our Internet privacy policy is:

- You do not have to give us personal information to visit our site.
- We will collect personally identifiable information (name, email address, or other unique information) only if specifically and knowingly provided by you.
- Personally identifying information you provide will be used only in connection with Somerville Partners Ltd. programs and services or for such other purposes as are described at the point of collection.
- Information is collected for statistical purposes and Somerville Partners Ltd. sometimes performs analyses of user behavior in order to measure customer interest in the various areas of our site.
- We do not give, sell, or transfer any personal information to a third party.
- We may enable "cookies." A "cookie" is a file placed on your personal computer's hard drive by a Web site that allows it to monitor your use of the site.

The bottom line. As a firm of psychologists and highly professional business people we take privacy very seriously. We are bound by a strict code of ethics that we follow without exception.